"I've extolled the virtues of this festival for years, and my praise continues in 2024. Curation runs deep at Fantasia, delivering excellent genre films from around the world that retain a bespoke quality, offering the unadulterated visions of their filmmakers."

Forbes, USA

"The pedigree of Frontières picks is high and a number of recent selections have gone on to premiere in Cannes such as: Zarrar Kahn's 2023 Directors' Fortnight entry In Flames, Valdimar Jóhannsson's 2021 Critics' Week entry Lamb, and Lorcan Finnegan's 2019 Critics Week selection Vivarium."

Screen International, UK

"It's that magical combination of total investment and witty irreverence (plus, a wide understanding that Montreal residents are generally awesome) that makes Fantasia crowds so intoxicating to this day."

Indiewire, USA

"I'll probably never love a festival more than Montreal's Fantasia International Film Festival. It's long, genre-focused (horror, sci-fi, animation, you name it), and eclectic as all get-out."

RogerEbert.Com, USA

"Now in its 28th year, Fantasia International Film Festival is North America's whoppingest genre festival, a continental pace-setter whose three-week sprawl and seemingly boundless cinematic variety are hard to come by anywhere else. No other festival can match its freak. Or, for that matter, its fan-driven, cinephile-stoking ethos. The fest brings together some of the planet's rowdiest audiences with a parade of global auteurs, underground troublemakers, and indie breakouts — almost all of whom wind up at a downtown Irish bar after hours. It's hard to beat."

Film Threat, USA

"Montreal's Fantasia International Film Festival unveils Bookworm as opening film. Bookworm stars Elijah Wood (Yellowjackets, The Lord of the Rings trilogy) and Nell Fisher (Evil Dead Rise). Other world premieres included in the line-up are The Beast Within starring Kit Harington (Game of Thrones)."

Variety, USA

"Set in one of our favorite places on Earth during its warmest months, Fantasia has evolved in its nearly three decades from a festival that mostly celebrates Asian cinema to one that embraces genre films from around the world — The audience is one of the most passionate and informed in the world. Fantasia also offers crucial business opportunities: The international co-production market Frontières has drawn a long list of distributors and sales agents, including Drafthouse, Neon, Universal Pictures, AMC Networks, Shudder, WellGo, Pony Canyon, XYZ Films, and more."

MovieMaker, USA

"As the largest genre film festival in North America, it once again balances its global view of the contemporary scene, while also showcasing local Canadian talent, both emerging and established.

With Ant Timpson's long-awaited follow-up to 2019's Come to Daddy, the New Zealand filmmaker's sophomore feature Bookworm again finds him working with his long-time collaborator Elijah Wood. Along with horror's darling du jour Mike Flanagan appearing in person to receive the 2024 Cheval Noir career award, while such key screenings and events are quite rightly receiving much press attention, 2024 is first and foremost very much a festival that is foregrounding the significant recent achievements of two of the most important women film critics working in the terrain of genre criticism today."

Fantasia 2024: Bookworm, Shelby Oaks, The Count of Monte Cristo

Clint Worthington July 25, 2024 9 min read

Let's get this out of the way, first and foremost: I'll probably never love a festival more than Montreal's Fantasia International Film Festival. It's long (runs at least two weeks), genre-focused (horror, sci-fi, animation, you name it), and eclectic as all get-out. On top of that, it's exceedingly Canadian. So it was a delight to learn that, for my first year as an Assistant Editor for RogerEbert.com, I'd get to do more than pilfer Fantasia's ever-generous screener library remotely this year – I would fly up to sunny Montreal, Quebec, and join the festivities.

Fantasia Film Festival 2024 (Curtain Raiser)

👤 Robyn Adams 06/07/2024 📍 1

In centuries past, wealthy eccentrics would sometimes entertain, shock, and astound dinner-guests by showing them collections of intriguing, and frequently downright bizarre, items known as "Cabinets of Curiosities"; these could contain anything from fragmentary relics of dead civilizations to some crude taxidermied chimera constructed by sewing the torso of a monkey to the tail of a fish. Strip that "Cabinet of Curiosities" concept of its potentially elitist and colonial baggage, and I'd argue that you'd have the perfect formula for how to curate a genre film festival lineup: a showcase of all the variety of the weird delights that this planet we call home has to offer, whether low-brow, high-brow, or whatever.

The Fantasia International Film Festival has, in essence, perfected the art of film festival programming. Montreal-based festival, which celebrates its 28th year running this July and August, is globally renowned for its

Adrienne and the Castle (Fantasia 2024): Clinging onto a Lifetime of Fantasy When Reality Takes Over (Review)

👤 Joe McKeown 22/07/2024

Adrienne and The Castle is a fascinating oddity of a documentary from filmmaker Shannon Walsh, a fantastical love story told from the perspective of a fairytale that is sadly over. It follows George, an artist and entrepreneur of a world famous mascot company, responsible for iconic cuddly heroes such as Tony the Tiger and Smokey Bear.

Had this simply been an examination of St-George's business ventures, that may well have struck a chord with modern audiences, given the current climate we find ourselves in, where flocks of people will buy a ticket to the

👤 Joe McKeown 24/07/2024

The inherent contradiction of the most successful movies about wrestling (The Fox and The Wrestler to name just two examples), is that they tend to be high-level productions that miss their sights on major awards contention, which puts them somewhat at odds with the rest of the entertainment industry they attempt to represent. If we focus solely on the WWE, there's a hugely lucrative global business that never quite seems to dig itself out.

It's only ever two steps away from a major scandal at worst, or a cringe-inducing creative decision when the A24-produced, or Aronofsky-directed feature comes along, it all feels a little arms-length, spectacle. It's tapping into

Hollywood 90028 (Fantasia 2024) (Review)

👤 Robyn Adams 28/07/2024

Whereas many will undoubtedly be raving about the wonderful selection of new premieres at the 2024 edition of Fantasia Fest for weeks to come – and for good reason, as its lineup is tremendous – I'd certainly advise genre film fanatics to not ignore the restored and resurrected titles on offer as part of the festival's Fantasia Retro strand. It often feels like film festivals which celebrate genre – and especially horror – filmmaking bring a little slice of Halloween to whatever part of the year they take place in, and in tune with that season where the world is at its thinnest, those thought dead and gone are given new life and walk amongst us.

Thanks to the wonderful folks at Grindhouse Releasing, one of these titles which is back from ready to party is Christina Hornsby's Hollywood 90028 (1973), unearthed and remastered in 4K for the launch of author Heidi Honeycutt's new book I Spat on Your Celluloid: The History of Women Directing Horror Movies.

Cuckoo (Fantasia 2024) (Review)

👤 Robyn Adams 02/08/2024

Cuckoos are brood parasites that lay their eggs in the nests of other bird species and, once hatched, the chicks are raised by the unsuspecting host parents, who frequently reject their own eggs and young as a result. In Gretchen Hunter Schafer's teenage girl forced to move to the Bavarian Alps with her estranged father (Martin Csokas), his wife Jessica Henwick, and their mute daughter Alma (Mila Lieke), after her mother's passing, the plight of the host chick must seem pretty reliable. Alone in an unfamiliar place, neglected, and often outright ignored by her "new" parents, their other child, her cries for help are unheard or played down by those around her. For some people, the experience of being rejected by those who are supposed to love and care for you who and what you are, is all too upsettingly familiar. The parasite may have infiltrated your nest, but species can be just as cruel.

The Tenants (Fantasia 2024)(Review)

There's something depressingly relatable in seeing art about housing crises from other countries as it's something that hits people so personally, knowing that they were not alone. The sad part is obviously that it's happening at all, with little social security, and this is the feeling that dominates The Tenants – Yoon Eun-kyung's feature debut in which things have got so bad, people will exploit every loophole and pull any trick to get a bit closer to a "better life." Shin-dong is a dedicated office worker with dreams of leaving his small apartment and attempts to raise funds by letting out parts of his flat, taking in the first people to express interest (who request to live in his bathroom), and the film becomes absurd from there.

Eun-kyung establishes the heightened futuristic dystopia of the film subtly with casual integration of technology and characters continually coughing because of the outdoor pollution. He smartly uses his limited resources for

Animalia Paradoxa (Fantasia 2024) (Review)

👤 Alex Faine 07/08/2024

Think of any dystopian environment you've either read in a book or seen on screen. How do they typically come to be that way? Usually, it's the result of humanity sliding into autocracy, or a cataclysmic environmental event, or a rapid increase in social injustices. It's unclear as to how the hostile, fragile ruin that Animalia Paradoxa (fresh from Fantasia 2024) takes place in came to be, but through the worldbuilding, it's likely a combination of all the above. In the background, what sounds like a sermon by some female preacher, denouncing men for the state in which the world is, with immaculate production design, we see the rubble, dust and polluted air that is hanging in the environment – the world of Animalia Paradoxa is suffering in the fallout of something vague.

Visually, the world that is presented in Animalia Paradoxa is gorgeous. The problem is – there's barely any dialogue which becomes more problematic when this is an 80 minute feature-length, which eventually stretches itself way

Fantasia announces 'Witchboard' and 'Dark Match' in first wave of films

by Kat Hughes May 9, 2024

The Fantasia International Film Festival will turn 28 this year. The event is one of THN's favourite to cover as Fantasia consistently curates some of the best genre titles around, and the 2024 is set to continue this trend. Fantasia has just revealed the first wave of the year's titles and it is already an impressively strong

Ant Timpson's 'Bookworm' to open Fantasia

by Kat Hughes Jun 7, 2024

After having already revealed one wave of fantastic genre titles, Fantasia International Film festival are now back with their second. This new announcement includes details of the festival's opening movie, Bookworm. Directed by Ant Timpson and starring Elijah Wood, the tale of whimsy is bound to get Fantasia off to a flying start.

Fantasia's final wave of titles have been revealed

by Kat Hughes Jul 3, 2024

After its first two announcements of titles, Fantasia International Film Festival 2024 was already shaping up to be pretty special, but the team isn't finished yet. Today they have revealed their final batch of titles and events, and it's safe to say now is the time to start looking at flights to Los Angeles. The 28th edition of the renowned film festival will

Six films not to be missed at Fantasia 2024

by Kat Hughes Jul 8, 2024

Fantasia International Film Festival returns for its 28th edition from 18th July to 4th August 2024. The event will play host to an overflowing abundance of new and exciting genre films, with it set to screen over 125 features and more than 200 short films. With so many movies to choose from, it can be hard to know where to start when it comes to picking what to watch. However, though, we at THN have created a small selection of titles

'Bookworm' review: Dir. Ant Timpson [Fantasia 2024]

by Kat Hughes Jul 19, 2024

In 2019 Ant Timpson unleashed Come to Daddy into the world. The quirky comedy thriller starring Elijah Wood and Michael Smiley took festivals by storm with its unique brand of humour. Now five years later, the three have reunited for Timpson's next directorial effort, Bookworm.

'Carnage for Christmas' review: Dir. Alice Maio Mackay [Fantasia 2024]

by Kat Hughes Jul 21, 2024

Australian director Alice Maio Mackay might only be nineteen, but she already has an enviable back catalogue of features and is somehow already making her fifth film. That film is the Yuletide horror Carnage for Christmas, which pits a super sleuth podcaster against a devious Santa slasher killer.

What's offered here is a brief taste of Fantasia's Short Film programs. There's 17 different collections that's still continuing to play. They may well appear at your local film festival next!

As Montreal's most beloved genre film festival enters its last week of celebrating an eclectic range of Fantasia's short film celebration an eye out on these up-and-ough I didn't view everything in I saw so far is a great way to see who... came up to become feature length works in the future!

After Fantasia 2024, Here's Where Baby Assassins 3 Nice Days Will Play Next

Good news, John Wick fans! Baby Assassins 3 will be coming to North American theatres in September! It has just as equally stunning fist-to-fist action as the last film, and there's gun play too!

Once armed with a proper rewatch from first film to the third, I was ready to tackle the aptly named Baby Assassins 3, which made its debut at... Even after the latest, I had to is to remind myself about what am. With this latest, the dynamic this... go on vacation!

[Fantasia 2024] The Rubber Gun de Allan Moyle

Portrait crédible, sincère et attachant de la communauté underground de Montréal au milieu années 1970.

[Fantasia 2024] Chanson pour Julie de Jacques Vallée

Avec un récit mieux développé, une mise en scène plus assurée et des comédiens mieux dirigés, on aurait peut-être pu arriver à quelque chose de probant.

Ababouiné en première à Fantasia

Le plus récent film du réalisateur québécois André Forcier clôturera la 28e édition de Fantasia, le 4 août prochain.

Ababouiné ouvrira les Percéides

Le plus récent film d'André Forcier prend l'affiche au Québec dans les jours qui suivent sa présentation au festival international d'art et de cinéma de Percé Gaspé.

[Critique] We Are Zombies de RKSS

Avec ce troisième long métrage, le trio RKSS propose une histoire aux enjeux trop simplistes, aux dialogues trop vulgaires et aux développements trop maladroits pour parvenir à convaincre.

Jour de chasse – Film de Annick Blanc

Pour son premier long métrage, la réalisatrice propose une variation contemporaine du thème de la chasse, cher au cinéma québécois.

[Critique] Ababouiné d'André Forcier

Un sujet parfait pour son auteur et ses acolytes, qui parviennent somme toute à trouver le juste équilibre entre absurdité, désinvolture et gravité.

あっという間の2時間11分。一気に観た。色々な時代劇に対するオマージュも込められて、CGを使ったり、ワイヤーで飛んだりとかっていうんじゃなくて、昔ながらの本にした痛快チャンバラ。山口馬木也の朴訥と力が本物にしか見えない。侍魂がうまく描かれたとても楽しい娯楽時代劇だ。

'Night Fishing' invited to compete in Canadian film fest

 Woo Jae-yeon

All News · 11:10 June 07, 2024

SEOUL, June 7 (Yonhap) – The mystery thriller "Night Fishing," starring Son Suk-ku, has been invited to compete in the short film category at Canada's Fantasia International Film Festival, its distributor said Friday.

"With its intriguing universe, 'Night Fishing' has the potential to be expanded into a feature film," CGV quoted Nicolas Archambault, a programmer of the film fest, as saying.

The 12-minute and 59-second film revolves around a driver who experiences a mysterious incident at a car charging station at night. It is directed by Moon Byoung-gon, who won the Palme d'Or for Short Films at the Cannes Film Festival with "Safe" in 2013.

Launched in 1996, the genre-focused film festival has cultivated a devoted following among ardent fans and distributors of genre films, like fantasy, horror and science fiction, among others. It takes place in Montreal, Canada, from July 18-Aug. 4.
